St. Saviour's, Southwark, recently made the centre of the diocese of Southwark, is one of the most interesting churches in London. It was originally built in the thirteenth century for the Augustinian Priory, but most of the present erection is of more modern date, the nave having been rebuilt in 1894. The oldest portions are the Lady Chapel and the Choir and Transept. Within the church are memorials and windows to the memory of Philip Massenger, John Fletcher, John Gower (1402), and the English Martyrs.
